

BRAND GUIDELINES

A LETTER FROM THE FOUNDER

A house built on taste, and the people it gathers.

LOVEW Studio is the quiet, considered home I wished existed when I first picked up a garment and styled my first shoot. A place where warmth is not at odds with professionalism, and where a campaign can feel like a dinner table — deliberate, generous, and beautiful.

This book is the compass. It describes how we look, how we sound, and how we move — so that whether a moodboard, an invoice, or a carousel leaves our hands, it unmistakably carries our scent. Use it freely, use it kindly. And when you must break a rule, do it with reason, with intention, and with love.

I.

Brand

foundation.

The things we believe about the work, before we do the work. The quiet architecture beneath every shoot, every caption, every invoice.

The studio that grew out of a styling kit.

LOVEW began in Jakarta as one stylist — a pinboard, a steamer, a Google Sheet, and a quiet insistence that production could feel finished long before the final frame.

Five years later, it has become a house of creative production: styling, campaign direction, UGC, talent sourcing, and end-to-end shoot management — always for brands that care how the thing behind the image feels.

WHAT WE ARE

A creative house for fashion brands.

TODAY — A Jakarta-based creative studio producing lookbooks, campaigns, catalogs, and UGC for independent fashion brands across Indonesia and beyond.

TOMORROW — A house that represents the quiet, considered end of fashion production in Southeast Asia — a trusted second studio for the next generation of brand builders.

THE COMPASS

Why we do it, and where we're going.

MISSION

To give fashion brands the kind of production partner they'd recommend to a friend — warm, considered, unmistakably styled, and built to make the work look like it cost more than it did.

ETHOS

Value before price. Depth over volume. Warm, never corporate. We lead with taste — and bill like a professional.

VISION

To become the house that emerging Southeast Asian fashion brands grow up with — a long-term creative home, not a one-shoot vendor.

PROMISE

Clients leave us feeling like their brand has a studio behind it — not a freelancer with a camera. Crew leave us feeling paid, respected, and briefed.

FOUR PILLARS

What we hold the work to.

01

Considered, not casual.

Everything we send — a moodboard, a WhatsApp, an invoice — is composed. Never sloppy, never over-polished to the point of cold.

02

Warmth is strategy.

Our softness is not a weakness; it's the product. Clients hire us because they'd rather feel good through a shoot than simply get one done.

03

Value, then price.

We lead with a gift — a reference, a cut of the plan, a thought — before we quote. The rates stand on their own after that.

04

Depth over volume.

Fewer, longer-lived brand relationships. Fewer, better shoots. We'd rather be a brand's second studio for three years than their fourth this quarter.

PERSONALITY

If LOVEW were a person.

She is the friend who always looks put together without trying. She remembers the reference you mentioned in passing. She is never rushed, never loud, and her emails make you feel like you're being taken seriously.

WHO WE'RE FOR

The brands we build for.

I.

The Independent Label.

Owner-led fashion brands at IDR 100M–2B revenue, stepping up from iPhone lookbooks to real campaigns. They want a studio that treats their brand like it already is the one they want to be.

II.

The Growing House.

Established Indonesian brands with 2–5 staff who need a creative partner, not a vendor. They hire us seasonally and value a studio that knows their archive.

III.

The Global Operator.

International clients (often via Upwork) who need a considered eye for styling, content, or wardrobe direction — usually remote, always particular.

We do not chase clients who shop on price alone. We build for founders who already know what they want the work to feel like — and just need the house that can deliver it.

II.

Identity & wordmark.

The signature. The seal. The way we sign our name at the bottom of everything we make.

THE SIGNATURE

Primary wordmark.

LOVEW

S T U D I O

The primary wordmark is LOVEW set in our display face (The Seasons), with the descriptor STUDIO beneath a hairline rule, in tracked-out Helvetica Now. It is the most authoritative expression of the brand and is to appear at the top of every official document, deliverable, and long-form applications.

MIN. SCREEN WIDTH 96 PX

BREATHING ROOM

Construction & clear space.

Clear space around the wordmark equals the cap-height of the letter L. Never let logos, imagery, or text break this invisible frame. The wordmark should feel like it has a room of its own.

X = CAP-HEIGHT

All clear space is measured from one x unit, defined as the cap-height of the letter L in the primary wordmark.

MINIMUM CLEAR SPACE

1.0*x* on all four sides for most uses; 1.5*x* on printed covers and packaging applications.

ALIGNMENT

The rule beneath LOVEW is the optical baseline. Align the wordmark with the first and last letters — L and W — never centered to visual weight.

THE FAMILY

Wordmark variations.

Four variations cover every application. The stacked primary is the default; use horizontal where height is the constraint; use the monogram for avatars, favicons, and embroidery; use the style edition for @lovewstyle content only.

THE SEAL

The monogram.

The monogram is the wax seal of LOVEW — a circular mark for small, intimate surfaces: profile photos, favicons, business-card backs, invoice headers, garment tags, and crew call-sheet corners.

It should never be stretched, colour-altered on the ring, or replaced with a different letterform. The italicised L is drawn from the display face; do not substitute a system font.

WHAT NOT TO DO

Wordmark misuse.

The wordmark is the studio's signature. Treat it like one. Do not redraw it, restack it, restyle it, or dress it in anything we wouldn't wear.

The style edition.

@lovewstyle is LOVEW's styling-forward voice — closer to the audience, more personal, less formal. It uses the same identity system as the master brand with one change: the descriptor beneath the wordmark becomes an italic set-line, the style edition.

ENDORSED ARCHITECTURE

LOVEW is always the parent. Sub-brands borrow its identity, they do not replace it. Every sub-brand deliverable must carry the LOVEW wordmark at least once — usually in the profile avatar or the sign-off.

VOICE SHIFT

@lovewstudio speaks as the house.
@lovewstyle speaks as the stylist — first-person, practical, warmer, more personal. Same wardrobe, different voice in the room.

COLOUR

Identical palette. @lovewstyle tends to lean lighter — more Chiffon and Pearl — reserving the deep wine for section breaks and hero frames.

III. Colour.

A house of deep wine, warm ivory, and olive shadow. Built for low light and long conversations.

THE HERO

The house colour — Wine.

unmistakable. Our primary —

THE HOUSE

Neutrals & accents.

Everything else orbits the Wine. Our neutrals are warm, never cold — papery ivories, bone whites, and mushroom browns. Our accents are olive and eucalyptus — earth-tones that suit skin and fabric.

THE 60 · 30 · 10

Proportion & pairing.

The LOVEW palette lives by the 60 / 30 / 10 rule. Let the warm neutrals do most of the work; let the Wine carry the weight; let the accents whisper.

APPROVED PAIRINGS

NEVER PAIR WITH

Pure black (#000). Cool digital greys. High-saturation reds (Valentines, CNY). Neon, fluorescent, or metallic tones outside of a specific campaign context. Wine + Plum in the same composition — too close in value.

CONTRAST NOTE

On digital surfaces, always use Wine or Ink for body text. Eucalyptus and Pearl have insufficient contrast on Chiffon at body sizes — reserve them for decorative elements only.

IV.

Typography.

*Two voices: one to sign, one to speak.
The Seasons for the headline, Helvetica Now for everything that carries the weight of the work.*

THE DISPLAY FACE

High-contrast, didone-adjacent serif. Our signature voice in headlines, covers, and ceremonial moments.

V.

Visual language.

How the work should feel: slow light, considered hands, fabric close to skin, rooms that look like they're waiting for someone.

PHOTOGRAPHY

The LOVEW mood.

LOVEW photography feels like overheard luxury — interior light, considered hands, textures close to the lens, a sense that something expensive just happened in the room. We favour moody depth, never flat daylight; warm shadows over cool highlights; editorial composition over product-pack symmetry.

INSTAGRAM

Social composition.

Our grid (4:5) is an editorial magazine in miniature. Alternate deep wine covers with photography and ivory talking-head cards. No tile should be unreadable on a scroll — titles go large, bodies stay short.

VOICE

How we write.

We write like a stylist at a dinner table: warm, bilingual, considered. Bahasa and English meet each other naturally — never forced, never overdone. We're allowed to be personal; we're not allowed to be sloppy.

01

Warm first.

Greet with "kak" or the client's first name.
Never "Dear Sir/Madam". We're professional because we sound like a person, not because we sound like a brochure.

02

Short, kind sentences.

Cut every "please note that", "kindly", "just wanted to". Say the thing, soften with a single warm sentence, close.

03

Don't over-explain price.

Rates are well-structured. Quote them once, cleanly. The urge to justify is what makes pricing feel uncertain — so we don't.

DO —

- ★ Write "Hai kak —" instead of "Dear Mr./Ms."
- ★ Use italics for emphasis, never bold ALL CAPS
- ★ Say "Here's the plan." Then give the plan.
- ★ Let silence sit. Not every reply needs a paragraph.
- ★ Sign off with Jocelyn / LOVEW — first name first.

DON'T —

- ✗ Open with "Sorry to bother you" or "Just checking in"
- ✗ Use emojis beyond ✦ ★ in brand content
- ✗ Paste rates into the opening line of a first reply
- ✗ Write in corporate English when Bahasa is warmer
- ✗ Use exclamation marks more than once per message
